think and act for radical change

transition academy

A space for changemakers

What if there was a space where you could learn how to find solutions to the biggest problems of our time? To face the climate, biodiversity and justice crises around us, we need to transform how we think, organise and behave. Through education, the DRIFT Transition Academy can give you a deeper understanding of these change processes.

It is our mission to increase your capacity as changemaker to contribute to a more just and sustainable society. We offer academic and professional education on the theory and practice of sustainability transitions. The focus lies on understanding what transitions are and how they can be influenced. Whether you work in (local) government or for a company, are in academia, in school or self-employed, the Transition Academy allows you to become a transition change agent in your own environment.

Transition Academy courses provide you with the knowledge and tools you need to understand and contribute to transformative social change processes. Get to know other motivated change agents and learn from each other's experience in one of our courses.

Below is a selection of our courses. For a full and up-to-date overview, see: drift.eur.nl/courses

Transition Management

Top transition scholars & practitioners provide you with a strong foundation in the theory and practice of transition management (in Dutch).

Accelerating the Energy Transition

Boost your knowledge and increase your ability to navigate uncertainties, opportunities and questions around the energy transition (in Dutch).

School of System Change Basecamp: Europe

Navigate complex challenges, map and diagnose systems and engage with far-reaching change processes in this six-month, fully online learning journey (in English).

tailor-made offer

In addition to our regular courses, the Transition Academy also offers tailor-made courses for businesses, organizations and (local) governments.

A tailor-made course allows you and your colleagues to embark on a collective learning journey, develop a fresh perspective on your organization's role and responsibility, and boost your capacity to engage with societal transitions.

With our tailor-made courses, you decide...

Content Understand transition dynamics by applying frameworks, practice with transition tools or critically reflect on your current, persistent problem. All is possible.

Duration A four-hour refresher, a multi-day deepdive or a full-blown course over several months? Timing won't be an issue.

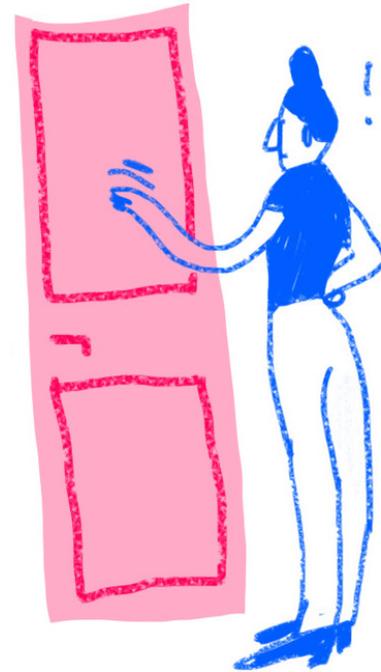

Staffing Do you prefer an academic approach or would you like to involve more practice-based transition experts? Our educational staff and guest lecturers have a wide range.

Location Organized in your company's headquarters for maximum accessibility or rather at totally different location to stimulate new trains of thought? The choice is yours!

learning approach

We believe that action and reflection reinforce one another. So in every setting, we challenge and empower our participants to:

→ Think

Question social change through analysing the dynamics of systems and networks, (re) interpreting social relations and beliefs, envisioning alternatives, co-designing strategies for intervention and critical (self)-reflection.

→ Act

Apply insights, tools and methods to real life challenges and case studies in your own context. Experiment with solutions, establish networks and inspire others.

→ Change

Challenge routines and alter the status quo, both in the social realm as in your own practices and perceptions.

lecturers & trainers

Our courses are taught by transition experts, with a rich and diverse set of knowledge and skills. Many of them, whether working at DRIFT or elsewhere, are simultaneously active as researchers, advisors, educators and activists..

"Learning as a continuous co-production process has never been more important. That means listening and asking yourself and your organisation the right questions. It's the key skill we teach to accelerate justice and sustainability transitions."

Marieke Verhagen, Chief Education Officer TAC
